

VAX TO SCHOOL: The Back to Campus Vaccine Checklist

Colleges and universities all over the country are taking key steps to keep their campuses safe this fall – and that starts with getting their students, faculty, and staff vaccinated from COVID-19. You can increase vaccination rates right now by:

- ❑ Hosting on-site vaccine clinics as students return to campus – in places where students are, including:
  - Move-in day to dorms
  - First year and transfer student orientation
  - During on-campus enrollment periods
  - At high-traffic on-campus offices and spaces, like at a financial aid office or in the quad/central area
  - Tailgates and college gamedays (e.g., at a football game)
  - Trainings for student leaders, like Residential Advisors or Orientation Leaders
  - And more!
- ❑ Sending out all-campus text messages, emails, and push notifications to your college community
- ❑ Putting reminder prompts on the vaccine into enrollment, class registration, or other processes that all of your students interact with as they start the academic year
- ❑ Asking academic departments to mention the importance of vaccination in their return to campus messages
- ❑ Asking athletic departments – including coaches, athletes, directors, and other sports figures on your campus – to highlight the importance of getting vaccinated both for safe competitive play and for safely attending sporting events
- ❑ Offering campus incentives like coffee perks, gym memberships, scholarships, or gameday incentives
- ❑ Encouraging students and student organizations to sign up for COVID-19 Student Corps, and to organize student events to get their peers out to get vaccinated, including canvassing, phone banks, text banks, friend banks, tabling, flyering, dormstorming, and more
- ❑ Using all of your social media platforms to get the word out to your student community – and encourage your student organizations to use their platforms to do the same
